Decline in value of Indian Rupee

155. SHRI GURUDAS DAS GUPTA:
SHRI CHATURANAN MISHRA:
SHRI SUSHILKUMAR SAMBHAJIRAO SHINDE:
SHRIMATI VEENA VERMA:

Will the Minister of FINANCE be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that the value of rupee against the dollar was dipped in the third week of October to above Rs. 35 per dollar; and

(b) what are the reasons therefor?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF FINANCE (DR. DEBIPROSAD PAL): (a) and (b) The rupee-dollar exchange rate (the FEDAI indicative rate) was Rs. 35.650 per U.S. dollar on October 26, 1995.

The U.S. dollar rupee rate had been almost stable since August 1993 even though inflation rates had been higher in India. With the strengthening of the U.S. dollar in international markets in September 1995, the rupee depreciated vis-avis the U.S. dollar. While the differences in inflation rates did warrant a correction of the exchange rate, the correction was excessive as importers who had earlier not taken forward cover suddenly entered the market while the exporters tended to delay repatriation of receipts. The Reserve Bank intervened to stabilise the foreign exchange market and since November 1, 1995 the exchange rate has remained below Rs. 35 per US dollar.
